

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

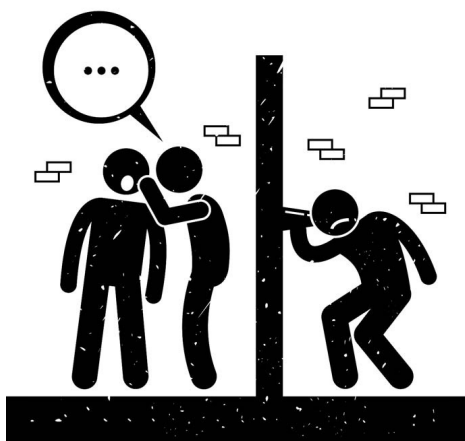

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

I think someone is listening!

Learning Outcome

Express duty, advice, willingness, or intention to do something in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Is it ok for parents to spy or eavesdrop on their kids? Why or why not?
- Is it ok for the government to eavesdrop on its citizens in order to keep them safe? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about beliefs, opinions, relationships or character traits.
- I can express annoyance about an action or an event in the present and in the past.
- I can express willingness and intention.

Let's Explore!

I don't like the crass manner in which your friends speak.

* "Crass" means to be lacking in sensitivity, refinement, or intelligence.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Vanessa: Hi, Amy.
Amy: Hi, Vanessa. Could I have a word with Peter alone?
Vanessa: Sure. I'll give you my office. Peter knows where it is.
Peter: I'll start. I have to get something off my chest. I am so sorry for the way I acted yesterday. I have no right to make demands of you or to have any expectations of you. I'm not that guy. I'm not the possessive type who has to keep tabs on your every movement. Unfortunately, I can be a little needy and a little insecure and I was both yesterday. The truth is, you are the best thing that has ever happened to me and I felt this wild pang of fear that this trip might be the beginning of the end for us. I like us. I want us to keep going. I'll do anything. I'll wash clothes, I'll cook dinner. Would you be willing to give me another chance?

Amy: Thank you for saying that Peter. That means a lot to me. I might have been angrier, but deep down I knew that you were coming from a place of love.

Peter: I would have apologized earlier, but I didn't know what to say.

Amy: Let me also say, that I could have been a little more sensitive toward your feelings as well.

Peter: Will you give me a hug?

Peter: Amy. Look. Someone is listening in.

Amy: You want to give them a show?

Peter: Yeah!

Amy: Peter you can be so crass!

Peter: You could at least think about my feelings once. Do you have to go now? You might let me know the next time you are going to save the world.

Amy: You might have let me know before we started dating that you were really just a child.

Peter: How dare you! You could have told me about that guy in New York!

Amy: Oh, please. Could you put the toilet seat down after using it? Would that be asking too much?

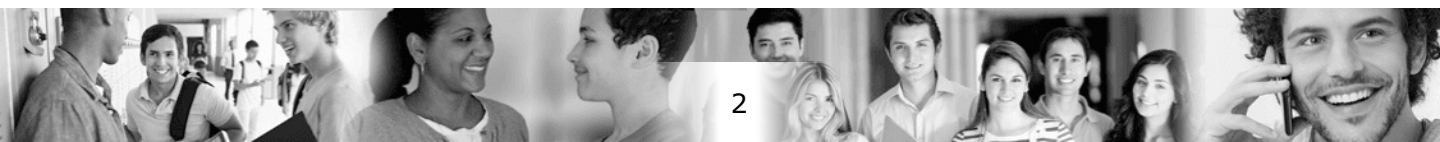

Peter: I would have, but I knew you wouldn't put it back up ...

Vanessa: What is wrong with you two? Can't you see you are great together? Can't you ... see ... Why are you smiling?

Amy: Oh! Hi, Vanessa.

Peter: Eavesdrop much V?

Vanessa: You guys!

Let's Practice!

Let's make up ...

Instructions: Read the expressions. Select the correct answer. Practice saying the complete sentences aloud with your partner. Correct each other.

- | | |
|--|--|
| 1) To say something you've wanted to say for a long time is ... <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) to take something off your chest b) to put something on your chest c) to get something off your chest 2) If you don't usually behave in a certain way you are ... <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) that guy b) not that guy c) not that person 3) If you want a lot of attention or love you are a ... person. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) needy b) in need c) need | 4) If you listen to a conversation secretly, you are ... on someone. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) eavesdropping b) easy listening c) looking in 5) When you are watching someone carefully to see what they do, you are ... <ul style="list-style-type: none"> a) keep tab on them b) keeping tabs on them c) keeps tab of them |
|--|--|

Let's Practice!

Peter and Amy have a row*!

*Here, the ow in "row" is pronounced the same as cow.

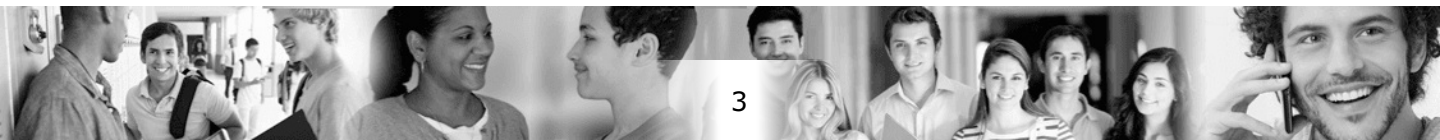

Instructions: Match the two halves to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Column A

- 1) Peter you can
- 2) You could at least think
- 3) You might let me know the next time
- 4) You could have told me about
- 5) Could you put the Column B

- a) be so insensitive!
- b) toilet seat down after using it?
- c) you are going to save the world.
- d) that guy in New York!
- e) about my feelings once.

Extension Activity

Role play a fake argument!

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Discuss with a partner the last time you had an argument with someone. What was it about? Where was it?
- With a partner, pretend someone is listening and create a fake argument about a situation of your choosing.
- Express annoyance and anger about your partner's present and past activities.
- Make the conversation as outlandish as you wish.
- Present it to the class.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I discuss with my partner the last time I had an argument.

☐ ☐

I collaborate with my partner to create a fake argument.

☐ ☐

I express annoyance in the present and the past.

☐ ☐

I present it to the class.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- get something off your chest (expression): to say something you have wanted to say for a long time
e.g. I have to get something off my chest.
- I'm not that guy (expression): I don't normally behave that way or have those mannerisms e.g. I'm not that guy. I'm not the possessive type.
- needy (adjective): wanting too much attention and love
e.g. I can be a little needy and a little insecure and I was both yesterday.
- pang (noun): a sudden sharp feeling, especially of painful emotion
e.g. I felt this wild pang of fear.
- to eavesdrop (verb): to listen to a conversation secretly
e.g. She was eavesdropping on their conversation.

Learning Points

Modals to Express Annoyance in the Present and in the Past

You use modals in their present and past forms to express annoyance about a situation or to make a critical comment.

When you want to express annoyance and criticism about the past, you can use modals such as could, might, should, ought to, and would + have + the past participle of the verb. This structure adds meaning to the main verb and can convey annoyance when you use them properly.

Remember, when you talk about annoyance in the past, you use the modal + have + past participle. Take a look at the chart below.

Tense	Modal	Use/Meaning	Example
Present	can/would	to express annoyance	I can be a little needy. Would that be asking too much?
Present	could/might	to express annoyance when someone doesn't do something	She might let me know when she's going to fly to Africa for a week! You could at least think about my feelings once.
Past	could have/ might have/ would have	to make a critical comment	You could have told me about that guy in New York! He might have offered to pay. You would have told me about the changes in the report!

Notice that the meaning of those expressions depend on the right context and tone of voice.

For example:

I took Carol out to dinner last night, because it was her birthday. I didn't tell her I got fired one week ago. She might have offered to pay.

In this sentence, the speaker does not express annoyance; he is expressing a possibility.

Examples:

- Peter, you can be so insensitive!

Learning Points

- You could at least think about my feelings once.
- Do you have to go now?
- You might let me know the next time you are going to save the world.
- You might have let me know before we started dating that you were really just a child.
- You could have told me about that guy in New York!
- Could you put the toilet seat down after using it?

Expressing Willingness and Intention

Will and Would are modals. You can use these modals to express willingness and intention. Willingness can be defined as the readiness to do something. Intention can be defined as an aim or plan.

You can use will to express willingness in the present.

For example:

Richard is a nice person. He will always help if you need something.

When you use will in the first person, it can express intention.

For example:

Ill do my homework later tonight.

You can also use would to express willingness in the past.

For example:

My father was a kind person. He would always help you if you were in trouble.

Take a look at some examples from the text:

Examples:

- I'll give you my office if you need it.
- I'll do anything to make you happy.
- I will take you to the office. It is raining.
- My boss won't let me go earlier.
- I talked to the manager at the shop, but they wouldn't give a discount.

